

LANDLOCH'D

“lively and fun-loving”

“a sense of fun and revelry”

“enthusiastic, boisterous”

LandLoch'd is an Atlanta-based acoustic band specializing in traditional and modern Celtic music and song.

Performing in period costumes as Renaissance characters Esteban Diego de Castille and Edward the Redbeard, LandLoch'd plays music that ranges from traditional Irish tunes to voice-and-drum sea shanties, along with modern Celtic pub favorites and lively drinking songs. With over forty years combined performing experience, LandLoch'd shows are high-energy, interactive, and can be tailored for any setting. We can fit any performance area from street corner to stage, and can perform fully acoustic or plugged in (we even provide our own sound system).

LandLoch'd has appeared at:

- Georgia Renaissance Festival
- Alabama Renaissance Festival
- Enchanted Chalice Renaissance Festival (Greenville, SC)
- Appalachian Renaissance Festival (Piney Flats, TN)
- DragonCon (Atlanta, GA)

Website: <http://www.landlochd.com>

Facebook: <http://www.facebook.com/LandLochd>

YouTube: <https://www.youtube.com/user/landlochd>

Discography: Loch'd and Loaded (2012), Whisky'd Out to Sea (2013), Good Rum and Bad Sheep (2014), ShipWREK'd Live (2014), The Devil's Own Invention (2017).

Contact: Ed Rigel, 770-757-6070, Redbeard@landlochd.com